

Snappy Shots

Remember those photo booths that once dotted shopping malls and theme parks, where the drop of a coin bought you instant snapshots? Once the curtain swung shut, goofy poses inevitably ensued.

Today, photo booths are bringing nostalgic fun to weddings, resulting in entertainment for the guests and priceless pics for the happy couple. "There's not anybody behind the camera, so people really let their guard down," says Beth Johnson, owner of Indy Photo Booth. Her company's retro-style booths are usually rented to add to, not replace, a traditional wedding photographer. "I think people are looking for more interactive things at weddings, and it's also a way to get party favors for your guests," she says.

At one wedding in Lafayette that had a booth from Strike A Pose Indy, the ongoing collection of pictures was projected onto a movie screen throughout the night.

"The funniest photos are the high school kids who are 13 or 14 and don't want to get into the booth with their parents," says Strike A Pose Indy co-president Kyle Nicholas. "The first photo is weird. By the end of the photos, they're in love with it."

Shula's Steak House is proud to exclusively serve the SHULA CUT, the best beef money can buy

Complimentary 30 minute wine & cheese reception before you rehearsal dinner for parties of 25 or more!

Group parking rates available.

"Still Undefeated"

Shulas is located at the Westin Indianapolis
50 S. Capitol Avenue, Indianapolis, IN 46204
tel: 317.231.3900 fax: 317.231.3929

www.donshula.com

